

2014 Chemistry Activity for the Jia Shin Junior High School Students (11/28/2014)

A group of students who were interested in science experienced this activity on the Friday afternoon. They synthesized liquid crystal, and then use this material to make temperature-sensing strips. The orientation of molecules changed when temperature changed. The strips changed color from white, blue, green, yellow, to orange as the temperature decreased.

