The following is a discourse structure test from JCEE 2007. Give the correct answers and use the text as a sample to explain to or teach your students how to find the answers correctly and efficiently in a discourse structure test .

Japan is dealing with a problem that’s just starting to sweep the world—an aging population combined with a shrinking work force. ____1(B)____ By so doing, it is hoped that Japan’s government will save its increasingly burdened pension (i.e., payment received after retirement) system from going bankrupt. In 2000, the Japanese could get a full pension from the government at 60. ____2(D)____ What’s more, premiums paid by workers every month are set to rise while payouts they get after retirement fall. To help workers to cope with this, Japan passed a law last year that requires companies by 2013 to raise their retirement age from 60 to 65 or rehire their retired workers. ____3(A)____ In a country where forced layoffs are a last resort, large companies traditionally have relied on retirement to reduce payrolls. They were just about to enjoy a big cut in personnel costs because of the mass retirement of Japan's baby boomers. ____4(E)____. Consequently, there was much opposition from corporations to the new retirement law. Early signs suggest that large corporations will hesitate in raising their retirement ages. ____5(C)____ Violators of the new law would face only "administrative guidance", not penalties. Such resistance is hurting the effectiveness of the policies, which may thus prolong the aging problem.

- (A) The new policy could be a strain for employers.
- (B) Therefore, aged Japanese are now being encouraged to work longer in life.
- (C) And, unlike the U.S., Japan has no law against discrimination based on age.
- (D) But by 2025, they won't get any until they are 65.
- (E) These people born between 1947 and 1949 make up 5.2 million members of the work force.
